Hi Melody,

The claim charts are designated as confidential under the protective order. Innovation does not object to you sharing those contentions with Resideo, provided that Resideo does not disseminate them beyond those officers, directors, and employees having a need to know. Innovation will consider allowing you to share the contentions with suppliers. But Resideo has to disclose the supplier(s), and the supplier(s) will have to agree to be bound by the protective order and not distribute the charts beyond those officers, directors, and employees having a need to know. Please confirm that this is acceptable.

Best,
Don

Hello, Don--

We noticed that IS's infringement contention claim charts are marked as Confidential even though they apparently rely entirely on publicly available information.

Please confirm that we may share the documents with our client and with any implicated suppliers. We also challenge the designation under the Court's Order Governing Proceedings. We request that IS remove the designations and re-serve the claim charts as public documents.

Thank you,
Melody
